Software Development Engineer – Backend (m/w/d)

Overview

Our agile SCRUM teams are working integrated as cross-functional teams. Aspects like software architecture, design, development and quality assurance are worked on collaboratively. Software craftsmanship and clean code are our core skills that we learn and live together. To strengthen our engineering team in Karlsruhe - one of LogMeIn's largest software development locations - we are looking for you to join us as a (Senior) Software Development Engineer for our flagship product GoToMeeting.

Responsibilities

In the cross-functional development team you will realize a level of quality that ensures high availability, performance and globally distributed operation of our software solutions. You will drive topics such as development standards, system design and testing, definition of software architectures, and quality assurance methods within the team and across teams. Your consideration ranges from determining requirements all the way to operating the software.

Qualifications

- You enjoy developing software according to clean code principles and are proficient in languages such as Java and JavaScript
- You have very good knowledge of backend systems and their cloud operation (preferably AWS)
- You are experienced with build tools and containerization solutions like Jenkins, Docker, and Kubernetes
- For you, software quality does not only mean unit testing
- You like to work actively on the improvement of product quality
- You are experienced with an agile approach
- You can quickly familiarize yourself with new complex topics
- You speak Business English
- Commitment, personal responsibility, communication skills, and team spirit are no foreign concepts to you

About LogMeIn

LogMeIn builds technology to secure and simplify how people and businesses do their best work, whenever, however, and most importantly, wherever. A market leader in unified communications and collaboration with products like GoToMeeting and GoToWebinar, identity and access management with LastPass, and customer engagement and support solutions with products like Bold360 and RescueAssist, LogMeIn has millions of customers spanning virtually every country across the globe.

Contact:
Careers.Germany@logmein.com

©2020 LogMeIn, Inc. All rights reserved.